A WORD
FOR THIS SEASON

FAITH.
PEOPLE.
MEDIA.
IMPACT.

At KP Media, we believe media is more than content—it's a calling. It's a way to inform, encourage, equip, and activate people for real-life Kingdom living.

That's why this year's Impact Week theme, "Break the Cycle," is so important. Many people are ready for more—ready to break patterns that have held them back, step into greater purpose, and walk in the authority they already have in Christ. Impact Week is seven days of powerful teaching, real conversations, and practical truth to help believers do just that.

From October 5–11, 2026, our speakers will bring timely, relevant messages on faith, freedom, family, leadership, finances, healing, and more. Each session is designed to encourage, challenge, and equip you to live differently—because a greater tomorrow is possible.

I invite you to join us, share the broadcasts, and be part of what God is doing through this week. Whether you're watching live or catching the replays, make plans to be engaged, bring a friend, and expect to be strengthened.

Thank you for being part of the KP Media family. Together, we can reach more people, with a greater message, for a greater Kingdom.

"We use media to inform, encourage, equip, and activate people for real-life Kingdom living."

APOSTLE CHARLES MATTHEWS

KINGDOM COMMON SENSE

Practical Truth for Real-Life Kingdom Living

WHEN THE SAME BATTLE COMES BACK

Recognizing the patterns designed to pull you back into what God has already brought you through.

There are victories we celebrate because we believe the battle is over. temptation was resisted. A habit was broken. A difficult season passed. We moved forward. Then, unexpectedly, something familiar shows up again.

In his Kingdom Common Sense teaching "Exposing Demonic Anniversaries," Apostle Charles Matthews addresses those recurring patterns through an important detail in the temptation of Jesus. Luke 4:13 says that after the devil had finished tempting Jesus, "he departed from him for a season."

Apostle Matthews emphasizes that the departure did not mean the adversary had abandoned his strategy. Jesus had overcome the temptation, but another opportunity would come. Just because something returns does not necessarily mean you never defeated it.

Something returning does not necessarily mean you never defeated it. Sometimes the challenge is recognizing it when it returns.

— APOSTLE CHARLES MATTHEWS

SAME TRAP. DIFFERENT PRESENTATION.

Apostle Matthews uses the phrase demonic anniversary to describe what he calls "a recurring season, circumstance, trigger, temptation, or pattern in which the enemy attempts to reintroduce something that was previously defeated."

He is careful to explain that "anniversary" does not necessarily mean the same calendar date each year. Instead, he is describing the recurrence of familiar spiritual patterns.

Recognizing the pattern is key. A recurring struggle may arrive through a different relationship, environment, emotional state or circumstance. If we only recognize the original presentation, we can miss the underlying pattern.

Apostle Matthews points particularly to vulnerable moments. Fatigue, irritation and other weakened conditions can affect how we respond to temptations we previously resisted. Awareness, then, becomes part of spiritual preparation.

“

Same temptation, different day. Same spirit of deception, different circumstance. Same vulnerability, different person. Same trap, different presentation.

DON'T GIVE IT A PLACE

Apostle Matthews connects this principle with Ephesians 4:27: "Neither give place to the devil." His emphasis is on the word place — an opportunity or room to operate.

Holiness is a weapon.

— APOSTLE CHARLES MATTHEWS

Holiness is not presented merely as a list of behaviors or an outward religious standard. Apostle Matthews connects holy living with refusing to reopen doors that should remain closed.

The question becomes more practical:

- What am I allowing back into my life?
- What situations repeatedly weaken my resolve?
- What relationships, environments or habits create opportunities for an old pattern to return?
- And what do I need to recognize sooner this time?
